

ENGAGING IN POLITICAL ACTIVITES

ON-DUTY ACTIVITIES

In what political activities may I engage when on duty?

 None. Federal employees (except Senate-confirmed Presidential appointees) may not engage in partisan political activities while on Government premises or when on duty.

What other limits apply regarding political activities while at work?

- You may not:
 - use Government property for political purposes, including using Government equipment to send political e-mails;
 - use your Government position or influence to interfere with an election or to coerce any person to participate in political activity;
 - wear a political button or clothing on duty;
 - display a political banner, sign, sticker, or poster in a Federal office; or
 - consider political affiliation or political activity with regard to a personnel action (except with regard to Schedule C employees and non-career SES appointments).

OFF-DUTY ACTIVITIES

Are there any restrictions when off duty and off Federal premises?

- Yes. You may not, even when not on duty or on Government premises:
 - ask for or accept a campaign contribution (including by hosting a fund-raiser or asking for contributions by telephone or in a speech) (except from a member of your union in some cases) or
 - run for office in a partisan election (an election that identifies candidates by party) (except as an independent in local races in some areas, such as in Washington, D.C. and its suburbs).
- Note that if you serve for 130 days or less in a 365-day cycle or are an intermittent employee, the off-duty restrictions do not apply to you.

If I am in the SES or NOAA Corps or an ALJ do additional restrictions apply?

 Yes. Career members of the SES, NOAA Corps officers, and administrative law judges also may not engage in any active campaign activities for a candidate or political party, such as by stuffing envelopes or asking for votes by telephone, and cannot serve as an officer in a political organization or a delegate to a convention.
